

2025 ICU Peace Rounds

Wednesday from 1:30 PM to 2:30 PM

Live Activity

Purpose:

PEACE Rounds is an interdisciplinary case conference designed to proactively review patient situations in a critical care setting that have the potential to create moral distress or potentially clinical ethics concerns. This case conference promotes communication among the healthcare team to intentionally discuss and define goals of care and clinical standards of care, work towards effective communication with patients and families through conflict and provides just in time education and resources to the care team directly from Ethics and communication experts/liaisons.

Objectives:

- 1 Discuss and analyze team barriers that could impede patient care
- 2 Review patient situations in a critical care setting that have the potential to create moral distress or potential clinical ethics concerns.
- 3 Define goals of care to support the care team in clearly aligning patient goals of care and clinical standards of care.
- 4 Implement immediate support through discussion, just in time education and resources to the care team directly from Ethics and communication experts/liaisons.
- 5 Promote communication among the health care team to support the team understanding and approach to goals of care, to promote intentional discussion of goals of care
- 6 Promote effective communication within the healthcare team to more effectively communicate with patients and families through conflict or potentially conflictual communication about care.
- 7 Integrate a multidisciplinary approach into the development of plan of care.
