

Avera McKennan Nursing EBP and Research Conference

Live Activity

10/22/2021 7:30 AM to 4:00 PM – Avera McKennan Hospital

Purpose

This educational activity has been specifically designed to share evidence-based practice, performance improvement and research studies conducted in the practice and academic settings.

Nursing Objectives

- 1 Describe the perception of occupational stress of nurses during the COVID-19 pandemic and discuss strategies to successfully manage it.
- 2 Examine the prevalence of emotional distress and associated factors experienced in nurses practicing in South Dakota during the COVID-19 pandemic
- 3 Examine the results of a set of culturally based interventions with a Native American population and the impact on future health complications
- 4 Investigate the level of preparedness, perceived risk of COVID-19 infection and level of mental distress among rural and urban South Dakota Certified Nurse Practitioners during the initial stages of the COVID-19 pandemic.
- 5 Discuss the impact of introducing Forensic Nursing and Sexual Assault Nurse Examiner (SANE) education on student nurses' ability to understand the epidemiology of violence and assess for adverse childhood events.
- 6 Describe the results of identifying patients who experience psychological distress related to a cancer diagnosis and the impact of implementing patient specific interventions to enhance outcomes and quality of cancer care.
- 7 Discuss the process to implement an opioid withdrawal assessment tool in an acute hospital setting
- 8 Describe the improvement of peer feedback education on the confidence and quality of peer feedback amongst practicing hospital nurses.

Outcome

90% of nurse leaders and clinicians will self-report an increase in knowledge of the unique stress of the COVID-19 pandemic and implement strategies to improve quality patient care by the end of the session.
